Trying to journal a bit in Denmark. We are here for L's mom. This trip has been hard. Tonight I was disappointed by Bryan about taking to much. I found only beer at the other end of the table talking with a new boy friend about gender memory but that had too much discussion

I am starting to feel that Danish culture is all pomp and circumstance. It is all people trying to be Danish as they see Danishness. People say they are polite but they are far from it they say they are interested but they never get that deep people think they know the Q & A because they've watched some TV show. They have no idea of the complexity of the US. To the same end the Denmark is also varied but the coastal people drive me crazy of a demand now. Just buckled and getting over jet lag. trying to get the thick of my self. Be less argumentative over all, maybe I can be like someone but not be an ass to them & still be friendly. I will need support to manage the funeral & stuff. For now I will try to sleep.

A is now dead 12 days ago it is sad, but it seems to have brought relief to many. I imagine many are still in shock & the relief will come. I worry that some ribbing might come.

A & A are the first in the family to lose any and both parents for now I go read & try to sleep. W. J. in
